

Dear Reader,

The word “premonition” means a deeply unsettling feeling of anticipation of an event without conscious reason, and once you have pondered such an ominous word, you have no need to read any further. This unsettling installation contains a distressing message and a hint to where you might find the location of your eventual doom.

To avoid causing you further duress, it would be best if I did not mention the other foreboding elements of this clue, particularly a dubious calendar system, cards shuffled by an ambidextrous person, poor working conditions, and a paper menagerie.

Sadly for me, my duty is to report the truth about the alignment of the stars, the planets, and the possibility of teams advancing to the next clue. You, however, do not have to follow The Fool’s errand, and may simply walk away for a pleasant meal followed by a delicious fortune cookie.

With all due respect,

A handwritten signature in black ink that reads "Lemony Snicket". The script is fluid and cursive, with the first letter 'L' being particularly large and stylized.

Lemony Snicket

Madame Lulu's caravan is a decrepit thing, with a faded wooden sign hanging across its frame, which reads: "Madame Lulu at the Caligari Carnival: What you want to hear, Guaranteed!"

Having read her job advert, and having never been more desperate, you approach, knocking on the door. She opens, and invites you into the cramped space with a crooked smile.

"Walk in, please," she says motioning to the table that sits in the middle of the room. There's only a single chair and a crooked stool to do for seating. As you enter, the stench of days old wine and buttermilk hang thick in the stifling air.

"I see you found my flier. Have you completed the bottom section?" She pauses, waiting. Your eyes glance down at the page in your hand, and one final time you verify its accuracy before handing it to the seer.

"Sit, please, and fate will test you."

Madame Lulu shuffles a deck of Tarot cards over a well worn, knotted rug draped across the wooden table, staring intently at you. The rug is intricately patterned with a great wheel that you recognize from the research you did last night, though curiously it only has eight sections. A crystal ball glows ominously on a shelf behind her. Flick, flick flick! With a flourish of her bony hands and long nails, she produces a card.

"Wands, the Two of, please," she announces as she lays the card onto the rug. You note she lays it on the third section of the wheel embroidered on the rug. The card is facing left.

Flick, flick, flick. The shuffle of cards speeds up to match your heartbeat. Suddenly Lulu snaps another card onto the table.

"Swords. The Eight of..." Madame Lulu announces, placing another card onto the rug. You note this card is in the eighth section of the rug. "...reversed," she finishes with a dark note. Reversed here is a term here which means "is facing down," much like the sinking feeling in your stomach as you watch the reading unfold.

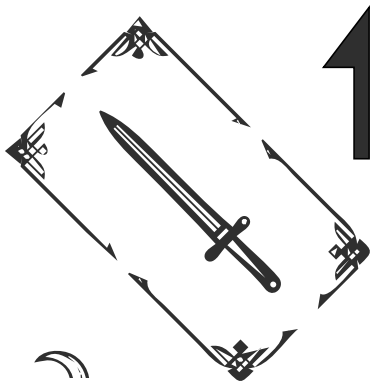

"Cups, The Seven of, please," the seer's eyes have gone blank, her voice almost singsong. Her hand slides the card onto the rug onto the second section. The card is facing right.

"Pentacles, the Two of." Another card is placed, this time on the seventh section of the rug. The card faces left.

She shuffles again, bridging and bending the cards to the will of the universe. You find yourself mesmerized, watching the deck flow like water between Madame Lulu's practiced hands. After the shuffle, she pauses, then gently reveals the final card.

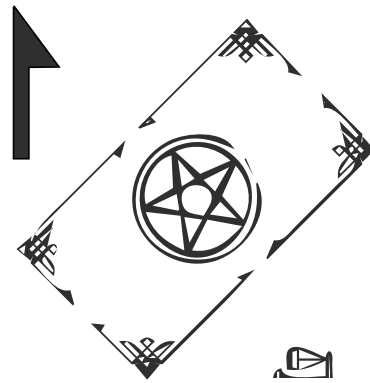

"Cups, The Four of. That is your fortune, please." She slides the card into the fifth position on the rug. The card is turned directly at you, facing up. Her attention drifts away from the cards she has laid out. As she stands, the focus returns to her eyes.

"If you read it properly, I may hire you for my carnival."
She laughs to herself, then watches to see what you do.

VIII

I

Fortune Teller
Position Open

Madame Lulu is hiring an entry level fortune teller now to work the Caligari Carnival during the peak festival season. Lulu is scouting a freak who is touched by fate, please. The candidate has clear vision and a strong motivation. They must be able to operate the crystal ball, tarot deck, and handle up to fifty pounds, please. A freak whose style is in, or who may be inheriting a large fortune, while not required, are considered a plus.

If you have other esoteric tallents, Madadme Lulu would be happy to discuss further, Please.

Madame Lulu treats all employees equally poorly, and does S not discriminate based on zodiac sign, please.

Pay is competetive within the carnival you will make enough to continue to live on the outskirts of the Caligari Carnival

Overtime is booked both unexpectedly and uncompensated.

Detatch the sheet below, please and complete all sections, including your birthday

and star sign, please.

Madame Lulu looks forward to telling your emplyoment future.

A

AI

Detatch from the sheet above, please.

Freak's Name

Freak's Zodiac Sign

